REGULAR HURRICANE.

Thursday Morning's Storm Made Its Severity Felt.

MANY VESSELS WERE DAMAGED.

Schs. Manhasset, James A. Garfield and Others Disabled.

All the incoming fishing vessels from sea this morning bear witness, by torn sails and broken booms and gaffs, of the severity of the blow and sudden squall of yesterday.

Sch. James A. Garfield came up the harbor shortly after 10 o'clock, and it was quickly seen that she had not escaped without a severe tussle with the elements. Her captain reported that the craft was bound in from the Rips with 18,000 pounds of fresh cod and was going to Boston to market her fare, when she encountered the blow about 18 miles southeast of Thatcher's island.

The force of the wind was terrific, and at about 2 o'clock was blowing with hurricane violence. The craft was hove down by one of the heavy squalls and for a time lay helpless. It was found necessary to stave off the bulwarks to relieve her of the great weight of water on deck, and so on both sides, from fashion piece to forward of the windlass, the bulwarks were knocked away and the craft righted. The force of the wind blew away the head sails, tore the foresail and broke the foreboom.

Sch. Fanny Belle Atwood, Capt. Henry A. Atwood, which came in this morning early to land a sick man, also had the storm heavy. Capt. Atwood says that the force of the wind was exceptionally strong and blew fiercely from 2 o'clock yesterday morning until well up to noon. The vessel at the time was about eight miles off Thatcher's island and had the Continued on Page 4.

heaviest part of it about 7 o'clock in the morning, when her jib was blown away.

Sch. Manhasset, Capt. W. Dexter Malone, which reached here this morning in tow of the tug Betsy Ross, had the blow about as hard as any of the fishing fleet yet heard from. The vessel left Boothbay Wednesday, bound for Georges, with a fine baiting. She was about 60 miles east by north from Thatcher's island when the worst of the gale was encountered. Capt. Malone says that it had been blowing hard since midnight, and two hours later it was howling. The foresail was torn in taking it in, so the riding sail was hoisted in its place, and with this set and a reefed mainsail and jumbo the Manhasset prepared to meet what was coming.

At 7 o'clock the wind appeared to again increase in violence, but it was from 9.30 to 11 o'clock that the Manhasset had it the worst. Then it came in a terrible squall, the fury of which could hardly be imagined. It hove the staunch Manhasset down and broke her mainboom like a pipestem and also put a big rent in the jib. The good vessel recovered from the shock and came back all right.

Capt. Malone says that the suddenness and ferocity of the squall could only be realized by those who were there and experienced it.

September 16

Late in the afternoon, when things had been straightened out a bit on the Manhasset and she was limping to port, Capt. Malone sighted a big three-master that had evidently been severely used, as only her foremast was standing. When sighted, the three-master was 40 miles east by south from Thatcher's island. The Manhasset ran down by her close, ready to give assistance if necessary, but the craft was making to port all right, heading up south-southwest for Cape Cod under only her head sails. The craft was sch. Lizzie Lane of Searsport.

Shortly after this and not far away, Capt. Malone sighted another three-master whose torn sails told the story of the partial victory of the storm. Evidently about all her sails had been blown away, for she had a new foresail bent, while the mainsail was hanging in ribbons and the headsails were also damaged.

HAD TO CUT CABLE.

Sch. Squanto Arrived at Bay Bulls, N. F., Recently.

Reports Flitched Halibut Fleet Doing Poorly.

The American halibuter Squanto arrived at Bay Bulls on Saturday with 150 fathoms of cable gone. The vessel was fishing at the Funks and hails for 15,000 fitches of halibut. While there during very stormy weather, an immense iceberg bore down on her and to save the ship from destruction she had to cut and run and is being given a cable by Mr. Weeks. All the rest of the flitchers are doing poorly except Capt. Wise of sch. Carrie W. Babson, who has 90,000.—St. John's Herald.

Reports Bait Scarce.

The salt banker Essex, Capt. Spinney, was at Louisburg, C. B., last Saturday for ice and bait, but was obliged to go to Sydney for it. He reports some fish on the Grand Bank but that bait was very scarce.

Bait.

Squid are reported to have struck in at Eastport. Some squid were taken at Provincetown yesterday.

A Peculiar Fish.

"There is a species of fish in the Indian ocean which have a very remarkable peculiarity," said a naturalist. "This fish is provided with a short snout, which it uses very much as a sportsman uses a gun. Swimming close beneath the surface of the water, it watches the flies flitting about directly overhead, and having selected one to its fancy suddenly thrusts its head out of the water and with unerring marksmanship discharges several drops of water at its victim. Confused, and with its wings drenched and rendered temporarily useless by the watery projectiles, the insect drops to the surface of the water, where it is immediately gobbled up by its voracious enemy. These fish are said to be able to bring down a fly in this manner from the height of two or three feet."

Trade continues fair and prices are well sustained on all grades. Incoming fares are bringing high prices and salt bank cod, ex-vessel, have been advanced 25 cents on both large and medium, on the strength of the discouraging reports from the salt bankers. Fish are in very light receipt this week, lighter than for considerable time past. No encouraging word has been heard from the seining fleet. Mackerel have been reported schooling, by the had-dockers, near the Cultivator shoal and several seiners have gone to that locality to investigate the report. What news can be obtained from the flitched halibut fleet and also the salt bank fleet indicates a small catch for both to date.

The receipts at this port for the week ending Sept. 17 are 241,000 lbs. salt cod.

76,000 lbs. fresh cod.
60,000 lbs. hake.
20,000 lbs. cusk.
